

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image processing circuit is provided in which a clock signal is divided according to bits of data input thereto and supply or interruption of the divided clock signals is controlled according to the value of the input data. Therefore, it becomes possible to interrupt the clock signal which is to be supplied for a bit among the bits of the input data which is not used for a long period of time and reduce the power consumption of the circuit.

5

10

09725686 040501